International Service

When you buy farm machinery—consider the service you are buying with it. Any machinery will need repairs and extras, and when you need them, you want them quick.

The INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY maintain in Canada sixteen branch houses where full lines of machinery and repairs are kept and in addition to that there is scarcely a town or village in the Dominion without an I. H. C. AGENT, carrying repairs and prepared to give SERVICE at any time.

It doesn't matter where you move, I. H. C. SERVICE is ahead of you. Think of this when you buy machinery this spring.

We have spring machinery set up, ready for your inspection now and we are full of enthusiasm.

Decision of Appeal Johnson v Reynolds

Many farmers in Crossfield and district will be interested in the successful outcome in the Court of Appeal of the case of Oscar Johnson vs Herbert B. Reynolds, both of whom are big farmers living at Cremons.

The defendant entered into a contract in the fall of 1918 to winter feed the Plaintiff's cattle, but later on the Defendant refused to carry out his contract.

Johnson, through his solicitor, J. A. Valiquette, sued for damages. The case was first tried before Hon. Mr. Justice Ives, in October last. The trial judge found that the contract had been proven and that the defendant had broken the contract but dismissed the action on the grounds that damage had not been shown.

From that judgment the Plaintiff was advised by his solicitor to appeal.

The Court of Appeal was unanimous in reversing the finding of the trial judge and awarded damages to Johnson in the sum of $450.00 and costs.

Wool Marketing In Saskatchewan

For the past six years the co-operative branch of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture has acted as a wool marketing agency for the sheep men of the province, and now a point has been reached where the success of co-operative marketing of wool has been so clearly demonstrated and the quantity handled annually amounts to such a heavy total that the Department of Agriculture is ready to hand over the work to the organized wool producers of the province, if they are prepared to assume the responsibility.

F. H. Add, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, in explaining the reasons for making this step, states that when the co-operative wool marketing work was undertaken in 1914, the sheep-breeding industry in the province had been at a standstill for a number of years, with the number of flocks decreasing rather than increasing. By exercising proper care in the preparation of wool for marketing and co-operating in the sale, it was believed that sheep men could materially increase their returns from their wool crop. The success which has attended the movement since its inception has amply justified the undertaking, and practically all the sheep men in the province are now familiar with the advantages to be gained through proper preparation of the wool and bulk sales on a graded basis.

In 1914 there were 179 consignments of wool received, with a total weight of 69,404 pounds, by the co-operative branch. In 1915 there were 318 consignments, with total weight of 136,328 pounds. In 1916 there were 487 consignments, with total weight of 179,890 pounds. In 1917 there was a still greater increase, 623 consignments with total weight of 223,445 pounds, and 916 consignments with total weight of 394,068 pounds in 1918. In 1919 there were 1,103 consignments, weighing 553,491 pounds, handled by the co-operative organization branch, making a total of over a million and a half pounds of wool handled in the past six years.

Since the Saskatchewan Government undertook this work, the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Limited, has been organized. This is a large selling organization composed of farmers in every province in Canada. Its shareholders in Saskatchewan now number 300, and it is proposed that these shareholders should form an association to handle the wool marketing work that has been performed so successfully during the last few years by the Saskatchewan Government on behalf of the farmers.

Women Workers in Finland

Man Power Was Greatly Depleted by War

Helsinki, Finland, as a stranger in that town reports his impressions, is a city of women doing the work that used to be done by men. He is astonished by the number of women in practically every kind of occupation. On the trains the porters in the sleeping cars are women; in the fields and factories women are busy at heavy manual labor; in the banks there are apparently about ten times as many women employed as men, and in one of the biggest financial institutions in the city positions of great responsibility are held by women. Compared with other countries, where the spectacle of women in what formerly were exclusively masculine employments became common during the war, Finland in general and Helsinki in particular, carry the proportion of women much further, for the man-power of Finland was so greatly depleted that a large proportion of the remaining male population is now needed for military service. In the Finnish Foreign Office, for example, women were holding positions which, says the correspondent, "would be entirely beyond the aspirations of their sisters in the State Department at Washington or the British Foreign Office." No other country, it seems safe to say, shows so wide and general an adaptation of women to the carrying on of every kind of work, and although the change is said to have come about rapidly, the women seem remarkably at ease in their new employment.

Natives Thought That Airmen Were Spirits

Landings Made by Party, Especially in Java, Were Dangerous

Captain Ross Smith's story of his great flight from England to Australia as published in the Sydney (Australia) Sun, reads like a tale from the Arabian Nights.

For absolutely new adventure his tour of the countries of Asia and Oceania is unsurpassed. Landings made by the party, especially in Java, were dangerous. At two landings in the Malay Siam Archipelago, the natives would have nothing to do with them, believing that the airmen were spirits of the dead who could come back to the world, but could not rest, so kept flying from place to place. In farther India and Siam, the natives were simply frightened out of their lives when the airmen appeared.

When two hundred miles north of Port Darwin on the day of which their voyage was completed, they passed the cruiser Sydney, the famous warship which destroyed the enemy. They dropped a message in a bottle attached to a small parachute, which they had made while flying. This was picked up by a boat from the cruiser.

The entire story of the flight is one of dauntless courage, bulldog tenacity and initiative. Several times they were nearly beaten down to the ground or the sea by torrential rains, and while flying over Malaysia, ran into a storm so terrible that definite steering was practically out of the question, and they merely circled until better weather was encountered.

Saskatchewan Farmers Want Irrigation

The Enactment of an Irrigation District Act is Necessary

Preliminary
Encouraged no doubt by the success of irrigation farms in Southern Alberta, and having similar conditions to contend against, farmers of South-Western Saskatchewan have approached their government with a request for an irrigation district act similar to the one in force in Alberta. Several prominent members of the Cypress Hill Water Users Association including G. S. Herringer, J. D. Wilson, John Dixon and others, and some irrigation experts from Alberta had a conference with the provincial government.

Reservoirs are necessary for the proper development of irrigation in South-West Saskatchewan. With the development of reservoir sites about a hundred thousand acres of land in the Cypress Hills District can be brought under irrigation. The enactment of an irrigation district act, under which farmers can organize irrigation districts, is a necessary preliminary to the carrying out of public irrigation schemes.

Indian Turbans

Made of Cloth Twenty to Forty Feet Long

In India the turban is worn to protect the head from excessive heat and the thickness varies according to the climate in each locality. These turbans are made of cloth from twenty to forty feet long, and wrapped around the head in endless variety, according to rank and taste. All those who can afford it wear a band ten to twelve feet long, made either partly or wholly of gold thread, on top of the turban. There are a number of accessories worn in combination with the turban. One beautiful ornament, limited to the use of kings, princes and nobles, is a beautifully embroidered velvet band about six inches long and two broad, in the middle of which is inserted a gold plate set with precious stones. This is worn obliquely in front of the turban, and the band is tied behind by means of a silk thread, fastened to each end.

Pure Bred Stock for the E. P. Ranch

Valuable Foundation Stock Coming from England Soon.

According to Professor W. L. Carlyle, who is acting as agent and manager of the farm in Southern Alberta purchased by the Prince of Wales, arrangements are being made to ship to the farm from England as soon as possible thirty head of pure bred shorthorn cattle, twenty-five head of pure bred Shropshire sheep, six or eight thoroughbred fillies and twenty selected Dartmoor ponies.

These animals will be used to restock the farm, and will make a magnificent contribution to the ever improving quality of the livestock of the province. The first shipment will comprise about twenty-six shorthorns related to the best herds of Scotland. These cattle are from the prince's estate.

Twenty-five head of Shropshire ewes will be from the flock of the Duke of Westminster, which is among the best in the United Kingdom.

Dartmoor ponies are a breed which is being introduced in Canada by the prince. The Dartmoor is described by Professor Carlyle as the most promising member of the pony family in England. On the great tableland of Dartmoor, in the Duchy of Cornwall, these ponies are reared. They belong to the hardest and the oldest breeds in the country, their ancestors having come in, it is supposed, with the original Spanish stock. On the bleak moor, on the edge of the prince's estate in Cornwall, 1,500 feet above sea level—higher than any of the mountains of Scotland—the ponies run wild. They stand twelve hands high and weigh from 600 to 700 pounds. They make excellent saddle ponies, and in the vicinity of Dartmoor are driven in carts.

The ranch in Alberta will in future be known as the "E. P." Ranch, and all the stock of the ranch will be branded with these letters. The prince expects to be able to visit the place at least once every two years, Mr. Carlyle says, and he will probably endeavor to return by way of Canada after his trip to Australia this summer.

Australia's Timber

Timber is Australia's best crop, says Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson, the former Governor-General of the Commonwealth. Speaking at an exhibition in Geelong of Australian timbers, he urged that steps be taken to save the beautiful woods which, he pointed out, were suited for the finest cabinet making, and to conserve the rich forest wealth by fire prevention, proper laying out and control, and careful classification. In Germany, he said, 4,000,000 people were dependent on the growth of timber and on the products of timber. The Governor-General has a valuable collection of Australian woods, and when he returns to Britain will doubtless astonish English manufacturers.

Prince of Wales A Keen Agriculturist

Royal Visit to Canada Has Increased Interest in Agriculture

The Prince of Wales was elected president of the Royal Agricultural Society of England at the annual meeting of that body held at the Royal Agricultural Show recently.

In the course of a speech which he made on this occasion, he said: "It is a very pleasant surprise to me to see you all so soon after my return to England. The last time we met was at the Royal Show at Cardiff, which I think we can call a record show." Since then, he continued, he had had a wonderful three months in Canada. He had been at the agricultural show in Toronto, which was of very great interest, and as everyone who really wanted to see farming and agriculture in Canada did, he had gone west. "As some of you know," the Prince said, "while I was there I purchased a small ranch in Alberta. I have always been very interested in agriculture, and I think the Home Farm in Cornwall has always had a certain number of stock and shown quite a lot at the Royal Show for many years. My visit to Canada has only increased my interest in agriculture and made me realize the great importance and necessity of the closest intimacy between farmers and agriculturists throughout the Empire. I hope that this year's show at Darlington may be another record show; I wish all success to the society and thank you all for the kind way you have received me and the honor you have done me by electing me president."

Must Not Sell Stock

Soldier Settlement Board Wins Action Against Veteran Who Sold Livestock

The first division court of Ontario, Judge Bryan, has given judgment in favor of the soldier settlement board of Canada in a suit to recover livestock sold to H. B. Boyd by John F. Conway, a soldier settler. His honor ruled that the stock was the property of the board until sold for, and that the settler had no right to dispose of it until he had discharged his obligations.

The decision is an important one, as it clears away any doubt that may have existed concerning the right of soldier settlers to sell their livestock or implements without the consent of the board. It is the intention to proceed against any settler who disposes of livestock or chattels, the ownership of which is vested in the soldier settlement board, and persons buying such property from settlers will likewise be prosecuted.

According to a statement issued by the Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, the value of Crown timber disposed of during the past year aggregates $654,372.99, as against $259,769.13 for 1916, $483,281.50 for 1917, and $380,408 for 1918.

Vancouver and Island districts top the list at $223,166.21; Fort George comes second with $134,650.33, and Prince Rupert a very close third with $133,596.93.

The number of sales and quantities involved is greater in every district than in any previous year. This increase is particularly noticed in the Upper Fraser River district, east of Prince George, where over 56,000,000 feet of saw timber, besides a considerable quantity of ties and cordwood, were disposed of, as against 11,000,000 during the previous year.

Another notable increase is shown also in the Upper Thompson River district, at Kamloops, where some 16,000,000 feet of saw timber and 990,000 ties were sold, as compared with 12,000,000 feet and 78,000 ties in 1918.

The total number of sales for 1919 is 356, as against 133 in 1916, 255 in 1917 and 227 in 1918, while the area cruised for sales has increased from 23,318 acres in 1916 to 61,809 acres in 1919. It is pointed out by the minister that the striking increase in timber sales, involving the cradling of a much larger area, has entailed a good deal of additional work on the part of the forestry officials, as a consequence of which a reorganization of the department has been effected in order to cope with its growing business. Returned soldiers and men from the temporary staff already have been brought in.

In the matter of piling, the minister's statement shows that over 4,000,000 lineal feet were sold in 1919, as against 378,000 feet in 1918, and a large increase also is noted in the number of cords of shingle bolts and cordwood.

An important phase of the disposal of the Crown timber stock is the sale by auction of small blocks and fractions adjacent to present operations, which would be wasted unless utilized immediately.

Small logging units of mature or over-mature timber also are offered for sale as improvement cutting in the interest of the forest, while timber on agricultural land also is sold on the condition that the land may be opened up for settlement. In this work there has been shown the closest co-operation between the lands and forest branches of the department.

A Lost People

Most Interesting Remains Are Network of Canals

By far the most interesting remains of the lost people of Arizona are their network of canals, which prevail throughout the valleys. The longest is the one tapping the Gila river, and which supplied with water the ancient city, now marked with the one standing building. This is the Casa Grande, about which so much has been written and which has excited so much interest among archaeologists in the last ten years. The volume of the land may be opened up for settlement. In this work there has been shown the closest co-operation between the lands and forest branches of the department.

To look into the future is not a sign of weakness, but of superiority. Foresight is an essential sign of civilization; the savage thinks only for the present, civilized man for the future.

Just because a girl doesn't love a man is no sign she doesn't want him to make love to her.
